

Hans-G. Sonntag
Hygiene-Institute, University of Heidelberg

---

Professor Sonntag is an MD and has acquired his PhD in Immunology and Medical Microbiology. He specialized in the fields of Medical Microbiology and Infection Epidemiology, Hygiene and Environmental Health and Quality Management in Medicine.

He was the director of the Institute of Hygiene at the University of Heidelberg, in Germany from 1980 to 2004; from 1994 to 2004 he was the Dean of the Medical Faculty at Heidelberg University.

He is author of more than 350 publications, mainly concerned with transplantation immunology, infectious diseases, antibiotics, general hygiene, environmental hygiene, hospital hygiene, disinfection, sterilization, preservation, and total quality management in medicine.

In his professional career he received more than 10 awards e.g. Doctor honoris causa from Semmelweis University in Budapest, Medal of Honor in Gold from Karls University in Prague, Visiting Professorship at the University of Mostar in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Dean of Honour of the Medical Faculty at the University Heidelberg.